Exhibit Information

The Professionals Advisory Council will hold its annual Spring Exhibit in Gould Court. HEADLINES 2011: Architecture Looking Ahead highlights emerging architectural projects designed by Washington practitioners. This preview of ideas and as yet un-built work, gives the public a rare glimpse into the studio process. An overview of the design innovation and influence of local practitioners both large and small, HEADLINES offers an exciting preview of future projects to be built regionally, nationally and globally. The exhibit is posted in Gould Court at the College of Built Environments main exhibit hall. Afterwards the exhibit travels to other Cascadia architecture schools including: Washington State University - Pullman and Spokane, Montana State University, Portland State University, and the University of Oregon. This year the exhibit will be shown at the Architectural Institute of British Columbia in Vancouver after it leaves the University of Washington and before traveling to other schools.

Professionals Advisory Council

The Department of Architecture Professionals Advisory Council maintains a dialog between practicing architects, allied design professionals, and the department faculty. This dialog informs the profession about departmental concerns and larger academic issues. In turn, faculty gains greater awareness of marketplace realities and trends. Through participation in the council, members enjoy opportunities for professional growth while supporting the department.

Location:

Gould Court - University of Washington
